

Nurul Kabir has always considered journalism to be his form of politics. A former Dhaka University student, he has always been a strong believer in democracy in every sphere of life. As the editor of the Bangladeshi English daily newspaper, New Age, he has always been outspoken about every topic, and continues to engage in numerous human rights platforms, particularly Odhikar, of which he is an advisor.