

He is 25 now and now holds a diploma on global leadership and public policy from the Harvard Kennedy School, but as a teenager Suhas Gopinath originally thought he would study veterinary science. Instead, at the age of 14 he was recognized as the worlds youngest certified professional web-developer through his project coolhindustan.com. When Indian state law prevented him from starting up his own company before he was 18, he went and set up Globals Inc, in 2000 at San Jose, California. From there, Globals Inc has drastically grown as a multinational IT consulting company with representation in more than 11 countries.

At the age of 16, Suhas was recognized as the world's youngest entrepreneur by CNBC and e-Business, Canada. At the age of 17 he was recognized as the World's youngest CEO. And in 2005, he became the youngest recipient of the prestigious Rajyotsava Award, given by the State Government of Karnataka.